Tricat's range now consists of just the 'S' for 'Sport' versions. The majority of Tricat owners are looking above all for pleasure at the helm and performance. The Tricat 25S has a cruising pack as an option, including a Profurl C290 jib furler with an anti-UV strip on the jib, a mesh trampoline and equipment offering a real plus when coastal cruising.

Launched last year, the Astus 22.1 is a trimaran which picks up the concepts of the rest of the range – ease of use and stability. On the 22-footer, the floats are telescopic, to allow transport without dismantling. The cockpit is well-protected and the interior space is attractive, with a double and two single berths...

Plasti'Concept, specialist in the manufacture of laminated parts, in close cooperation with the naval architect Pierre Delion, has optimised a manufacturing method adapted to a range of modern sailing boats, including multihulls from 24 to 33 feet which can easily be built by professionals as well as amateurs. The 24-footer is transportable and will offer maximum comfort in this size for family cruises...

The Bicok is a 'raid' boat; thanks to its daggerboards (keels are possible) and lifting rudders, it can easily be beached. For camping, a basic solution consists of sleeping in the hulls or setting up a small tent on the platform.

Under sail, the Bicok shows itself to be lively and pleasant in light weather and even sporty once the wind gets up. A pleasure machine, certainly, ideal for having fun as a family or with friends!

If you like sailing fast, but with a minimum level of comfort, here is the wonderful boat you need: the Edel 28! A simple, functional catamaran which is however great fun to helm. Thanks to its three modules, which can be dismantled, it is easily transportable behind a car. As for comfort, it offers two double berths.

This catamaran can be dismantled and transported, and offers accommodation for four people. But the Essence 6's interest lies in its 'Para' version, which offers two rotating carbon masts, one on each hull... Enough to ensure you will be noticed in the anchorage! In its 'Classic' version, the Essence 6 is equipped with an aluminium rotating mast and Vectran rigging. Headroom in the hulls is 1.35m, which allows the boat to be enjoyed to the full on coastal camping trips.
